We have a lowdown on how to (legally) watch movies online for free. The streaming market has exploded in India in the last few years. There are currently many options when it comes to watching movies online, with some sites allowing users free access or offering generous free trials. From the looks of it, movie enthusiasts embrace these special promotions, taking the full benefit of free trials and uninstalling apps from their smartphones once they no longer find them useful. It makes sense - there are so many services in just a few clicks, so it's a good idea to try them all out in order to decide which one suits you best. Unlimited instant stream of 1000s movies and TV shows - exclusive Bollywood and regional blockbusters such as Sultan and Kabali. Plus FREE 2-day delivery for millions of goods. Amazon and the Amazon logo are trademarks of Amazon.com, Inc. or its affiliates. Watching details with Bollywood releasing tons of content every year, piracy remains a huge problem in India. However, while relying on torrents may seem like an easy way to get your entertainment fix, downloading content illegally can attract fines or make you susceptible to malicious attacks. It's best to redirect your attention to (many) other ways you can enjoy watching movies for free. We've put together the most popular movie streaming platforms below - they all offer free access (with ads) or come with lengthy free samples that will give you a taste of whether you'll enjoy paying for a subscription. They are also available online and via a mobile app, so you can catch up in the movie queue at any time. HotstarIndia's most popular streaming platform offers a combination of free and premium content, with a free level more than worth your time. While some movies are only available to users with premium subscriptions, there are many titles you can stream completely for free, from drama thrillers to biopics to children's movies. The service also offers TV shows and sports live broadcasts, for a full entertainment experience, so it's hard to run out of content to watch, even with a free account. That being said, the Hotstar Premium subscription comes with access to English TV shows and movies, as well as recent Hindi and regional releases. If you're serious about keeping up with the world of movies, INR199/month shouldn't break the bank. The Premium subscription comes with a seven-day free trial. Hotstar will charge the full amount on your card, but will offer a refund, you cancel up your free week Premium up. NetflixNetflix can rule the streaming market globally, but the service is not particularly good in India. Its cheapest subscription plan costs INR500/month, which is significantly more expensive than competition. However, the platform platform strongly in original content and has an extensive catalog of movies available in India, so it might be worth a try. Roma, after all, brought Netflix its first Oscar nomination for Best Picture, so the future looks bright. Netflix India can try out all month. Amazon Prime VideoAccess to Prime Video is free with Amazon Prime subscription, priced at INR129/month or INR999/year. You get a one month free trial, so you can go through the prime video of a generous catalog of content - which includes popular regional movies and Hollywood blockbusters alike. In addition, Amazon Prime brings you free fast delivery of suitable products and additional perks, such as streaming music without advertising. If you shop online a lot, access to the entire library of movies and TV shows as a bonus makes a prime subscription worth the investment. JioCinemaJioCinema brings you tons of movies in all genres, including disney content in India - meaning you can stream as many Marvel blockbusters and Disney classics as you can handle. Even better, JioCinema is completely free to use - the only catch is that it is only available to Jio customers. You will need to log in with Jio credentials (phone number or Jio ID) to be able to stream content. However, if you already have Jio, getting access to hundreds of movies available for free is a good shake-up. KU-HUZ advertises itself as your gateway to the world of unlimited entertainment, and its catalog backs up the claim. The service, which comes with a one-month free trial, allows you to stream a wide range of both movies and TV series, including Hollywood hits. Once the free trial is finished, the HOO's subscription will return you to INR89/month. The platform also allows you to rent the most recent releases just from the cinema, usually for INR59 each. VooTVoo is a completely free streaming service on demand, which offers films in several languages (Hindi, Kannada, Bengali and more), with a special category for children. You can also stream TV shows, music videos or various clips, so you'll never run out of content to watch with that. You can register an account to better track what you're watching, but it's entirely up to you. The only downside is that you have to endure ads, but it's a small price to get access to such a large content library for free. Sony LivSimilar to other platforms on the list, Sony Liv hosts a mix of free and premium content, but many movies are available to stream at all costs. However, if you are looking for a Hollywood release, you will have to get a Premium subscription that costs INR99/month. You can browse the platform and watch without creating an account but registering in the service opens up additional features, such as adding a video that interests you to Watch later. BigFlixBigFlix comes with a monthly free trial that more than has enough time to marathon some of the titles in the catalog platform. Movies are available in several languages, which is Plus. You can create a free account, but it only allows you to check the trailers. If you sign up for a Premium subscription, you'll get a month's free, and you can cancel at any time. After that, if you decide to keep the service, you will pay INR50/month or INR500/year. It offers a wide range of content, from movies to TV shows, original productions and news. Many of them are free (with ads), so you can stream movies without paying anything (you don't even have to sign up for an account). If you are interested in some of the premium platform offerings, you will have to pay INR99/month. SpuulSpuul offers over 10,000 hours of Bollywood movies, and some are available for free. Content for users without an account is limited, but this should help you decide whether the Spuul subscription price is worth the price of INR 99/month. To get started, all you have to do is go to review and then click on the Free Movies. You will have to log in via Facebook or create an account by signing up with your email to see. ViuWith Viu, you will get access to a limited amount of free content, including a generous number of movies. You can transfer them without creating an account and the interface is user-friendly, so it's easy to see what's on offer and settle on the title. If you want a premium subscription, it costs INR99/two months. Tubi TVTubi TV allows you to watch free movies and TV shows without a subscription, without any conditions. You can browse through several categories, including family movies, romance, horror and more. The service is completely free - you don't even need to register for an account unless you feel like it. Television shows are also available on the platform. MUBIMUBI prides itself on offering a truly great movie that translates to cult, classic, independent and award-winning films from around the world. Subscription costs INR500/month and buys you access to 30 movies, a new one is added every day. You get a seven-day free trial, so you have a week to watch some movies and decide if they're up to your alley. HungamaAlthough is basically a music streaming service, Hungama also offers movies and TV shows at the moment, so you can enjoy a variety of content, many of them for free. Just browse the movie section, settle on a free title and you're good to go. In addition, you can purchase a subscription that comes with unlimited access to the directory platform. Movies and TV shows are worth INR99/month, while Entertainment Unlimited costs INR149/month (includes music downloads and more). Hungama also allows you to pay for subscriptions with Hungama coins that you can earn by spending time on the platform (registering to account, playing and so on). HochoHocho offers an impressive collection of Bengali films, but most of them are only available if you get a subscription. However, a small selection of titles are available for free - just browse the movie categories until you find the Free Movies section. If enjoying the service, the subscription costs INR399/year. MuvizzMuvizz specializes in cult, classic and independent films. Some titles are available for free, while others require a subscription, at the price of INR80/month. You can browse the platform library to see what's available and decide whether the Premium is worth your money. YouTubeWhile YouTube mainly specializes in short (er) videos and original content created by the community, if you are patient enough, you can stumble upon movies as well. Some are available on YouTube legally, others ... Not much. It can also be difficult to detect fakes and such; Besides, there is nothing more annoying than realizing that you don't have access to the entire movie after you start watching. We would be remiss not to include YouTube, but we strongly recommend you give other platforms on the list a chance as well.
